Comments from Those Who Hire Speakers

You know they (CSPs) have achieved a certain discipline that puts them in a category all their own... they have passed the test of longevity; they have proven themselves. It makes a difference today and will continue to make a difference in the meeting planning industry.

*Marolyn Wright

I am a CMP (Certified Meeting Professional). I believe strongly in designations. It says you are committed to the profession. When I have equal speakers, I will take the CSP first over the non-CSP. Yes, CSP does make a difference in selecting speakers.

*Betty E. Garrett, CMP
Garrett Speakers International*

CSP is an insurance policy toward the meeting planner's success. The CSP designator is a qualifier in the mind of the astute planner.

*Brad Plumb
North American Speakers Bureau, Inc.*

When I have a choice of a speaker who is a CSP or not, I will select the speaker who is a CSP.

*Michelle Lemmons
International Speakers Bureau, Inc.*

I always consider the CSP designation the hallmark of professional excellence. The CSPs that we have selected have never disappointed our audiences.

*Barbara S. Sadek
The Society for Human Resources Management*

It's truly an indication that a speaker has achieved a higher level of professionalism. It's something we look for first. I reduce my risk by hiring someone with a CSP.

WHAT BENEFIT DOES A CSP BRING TO YOUR MEETING?

A CSP brings a proven track record of continuing speaking experience and expertise. CSPs are committed to ongoing education, outstanding service and ethical behavior. CSPs offer wide varieties of approaches, topics and styles. Only you can determine which speaker will best fit your needs. A Certified Speaking Professional provides a solid place with which to begin your search.

What is CSP?

The Certified Speaking Professional designation, established in 1980, is the speaking industry's international measure of professional platform skill. CSP is conferred by the National Speakers Association (NSA) only on those accomplished speakers who have earned it by meeting strict criteria. The letters CSP following a speaker's name indicate a speaking professional with proven experience who understands what is required and knows how to deliver client satisfaction.

Why Should You Hire a CSP?

It will make your job easier! The success of your meeting will be judged largely on the caliber, professionalism and appropriateness of the topic and presenter(s) you select. Choosing a CSP maximizes your opportunity of providing a speaker with a message that will focus, elevate and enhance the mission of your meeting and stick firmly in the memories, attitudes and action plans of your attendees.
